

So many fun things..

My gratitude abounds. Continually. I cannot believe how many wonderful creative things we are able to do in a day. Creating order, just enough order, from what would be the constant drag of entropy. Ha ha. Creating order even in the spreading up of a bed, or the order of dishes in the cupboard.

I don't know what drives my life (it is a moot point, since I will never be able to figure it out), but it surely is some sort of visual need for order and beauty, which is fulfilled, in part, by creating stained glass patterns, by making memory-beads, by looking for beauty in what other artists and craftsmen have made before me.

In particular I found a image of the mosaic tile floor of the Bristol Cathedral High Altar and just was in awe of how many tiny pieces, so perfectly put together were in that work of art. I have made 6 or 7 patterns (some of them already posted on PDQpatterns.com and GospelGlass.com and eStainedGlassPatterns.com, and I have only worked on two of the 4 star patterns. I am attaching small images of some of those here, and will put links in September's letter. Happy glass working to you all,
