It is a challenge to keep up with “life”. I have decided in my own mind that the longer I live, there more I would like to do, and the catch 22 is that in an infinite universe I can never keep up with the new things that are possible because with every additional bit of knowledge I am aware that there is an unbounded amount to learn.

While that is at once depressing and exhilarating, it is a fact of life in the infinite universe-multiverse cosmos time-space in which we (all life) have found ourselves.

Every time I begin a new project it takes me somewhere that I both want to go, and am afraid to go – putting apples in front of me that I know I can never pick, never enjoy, never taste.

This could be another of those “paradoxes” that I need to accept – the more I learn, the less I know, haha.... we have all heard that little phrase before.
