Each of the patterns for stained glass below is actually a variation. This just indicates how much I will go through to make sure that you have the pattern that you are going to be pleased with. Custom work is typically difficult since we all have our own (and that is a good thing) ideas about what beauty is.

All one has to do is visit the art from ancient cultures and you know that humanity has a varied and creative spirit. This of course encroaches on the time I would use for making my own designs, but as well, I have found that those of you who request custom patterns often have ideas that others are very happy with, and purchase at a later time.
