

playing catch-up again

It is almost a new year and I am so far behind in creating monthly links to new patterns. I wonder if some sort of automation would help... of course then I would have to learn how to use that type of program, and wow, that takes time and energy, and a different kind of brain power. So for now, it's the old fashioned cut, paste, link and hope.

Since it is highly unlikely I will overcome the mountain of work I perceive for myself, none of which is relevant in our vast and awesome cosmos, please accept my wishes for a wonderful bodhi day, advent, krampusnacht, st nick's day, 12 days of christmas, st john's day, st stephens day, holy innocents day, st sylvesters day, solstice, christmas, hanukkah, kwanza, and new year and all others. Winter makes us want to celebrate, eat fat food, and stay in the company of others, likely for protection from the cold.

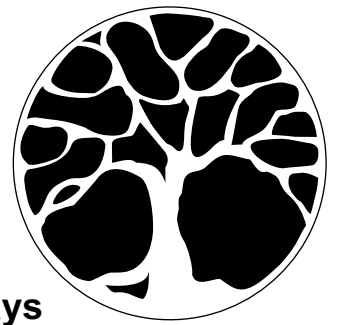

Here is something my father painted years and years ago... impish santa
