Don't you all just love computers. I had a newsletter for the beginning of October all worked up, or at least half worked up, and I open CorelDRAW to finalize it and what do I see?-- WELCOME TO RECOVERY WIZZARD-- that black and brown and grey screen that means certain demise for my file, my time, and my sanity (LOL). Of course recovery wizzard never recovers anything, it just makes me fume!!! I do expect tremendous amounts from the box and screen sitting in front of me, I expect convenience, perfection, and NO CRASHES and NO BREAKDOWNS!! (ROFLOLTMSH - rolling on the floor laughing out loud till my sides hurt).

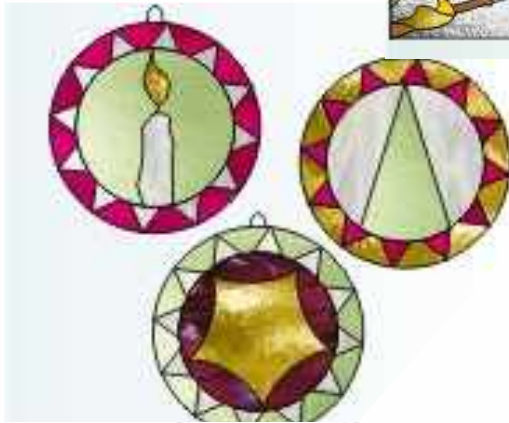

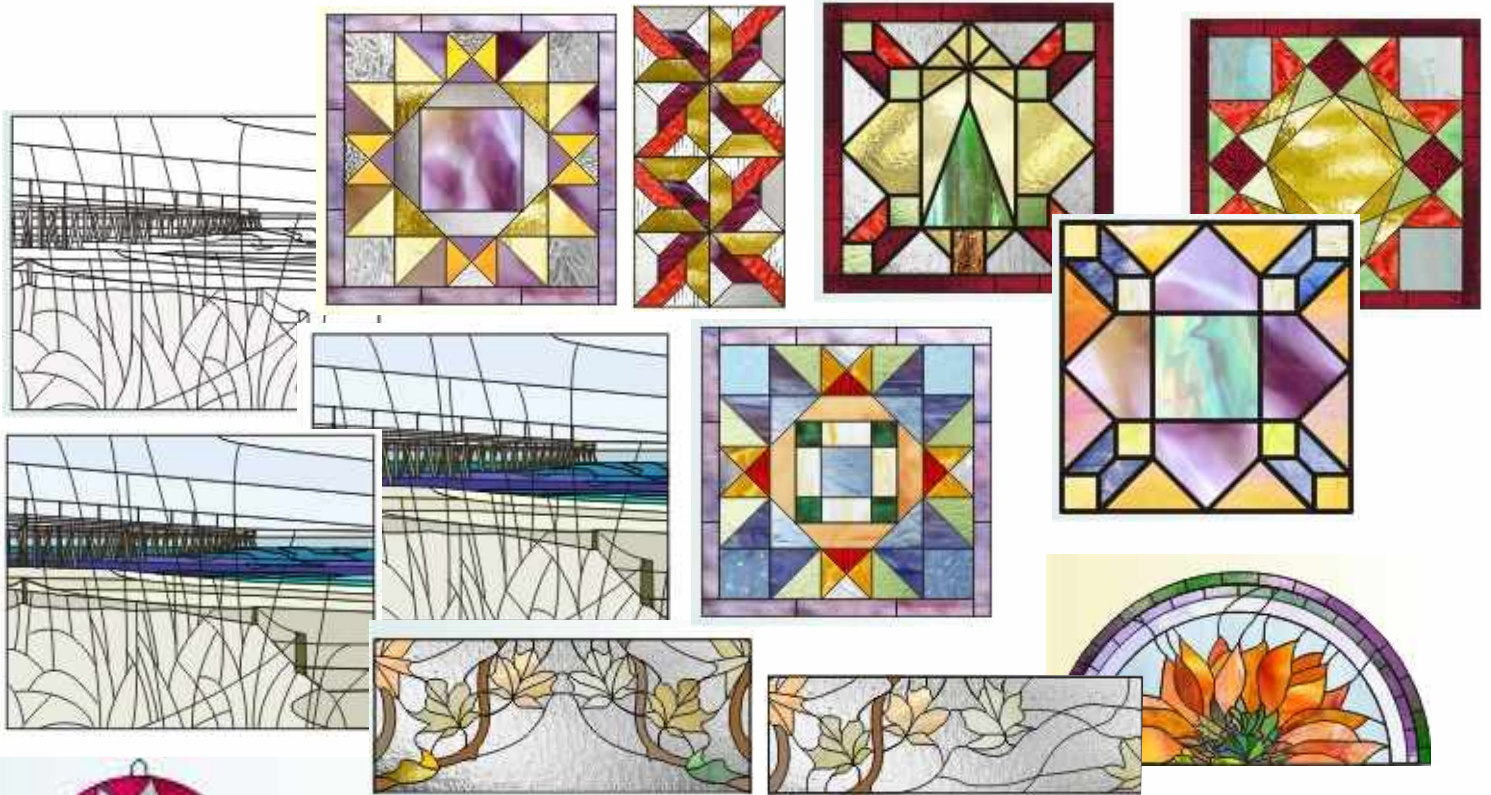

So this month's newsletter has changed its flavor, while the original spoke to truth in advertising, and related a couple of really "not so fair advertising" gimmicks by our local Kroger grocery chain, and to truth in advertising, in general, and my own commitment to making sure all you customers get the patterns for stained glass (and for cross stitch and peyote stitch off loom beading) that make you happy. It is also a lament, that even in this computer age, sometimes things crash, and time and energy just get tossed out into cyberspace, never never never to be recovered.

One thing that computers have given us all is the feeling that "perfection" is a possibility. I can, if i spend the time, create flawless stained glass patterns, no overlapping lines, bad cuts, with perfect dimensions, and send them countless times to customers, BUT, the "ideas and creativity" are still subject to my own limitations in design. This is where you can enter the picture, with suggestions for topics, and comments on technique and delivery.

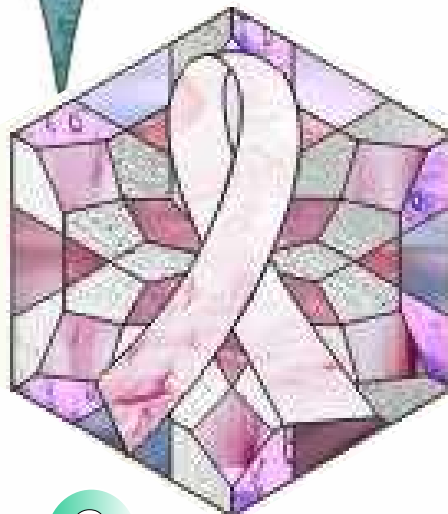

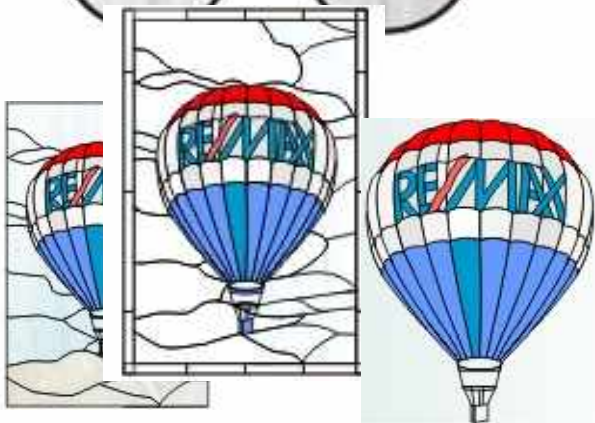

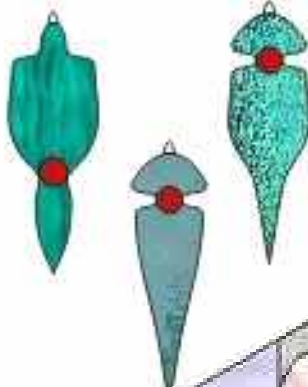

All these things I need from my customers to make the stained glass and other craft patterns EASY TO DOWNLOAD, EASY TO PRINT and EASY TO convert into marvelous stained glass panels and projects.

I appreciate your comments and your business. Have the best October ever, and Happy Halloween. m
