

..like a Mad hatter and a March hare

I am working this month to "catch up" --like I do every month and I must conclude that life doesn't "let up" and that if I "run" through life like a march hare or a mad hatter then I will miss the finest qualities of living. I've known this in some part of my brain for decades, but can't seem to make it part of my daily routine. Its easy to layer project upon project (whether stained glass, or quilting, or volunteering or working at a paying job). I sit two hours a day at a computer designing stained glass patterns, thinking that I am making significant impact on the world. But in fact I know I am not, at least in the sense of real and lasting "good". It's a little devastating because my soul wants to contribute to the good side of the binary universe. I, personally, need not to let the sound of "my own wheels", drive me crazy, especially on things that certainly will never matter in the greater scheme of the universe.

What is the alternative? I am not sure. Perhaps it is just the "search" for good that is the alternative, finding good and doing good might reduce the pressure for useless "things" and "events".

Thanks to you all for your orders, and I relish the kind comments. m

IN THIS ISSUE

March hare.....	1
New Patterns.....	2
Coupon.....	3
Freebie.....	3

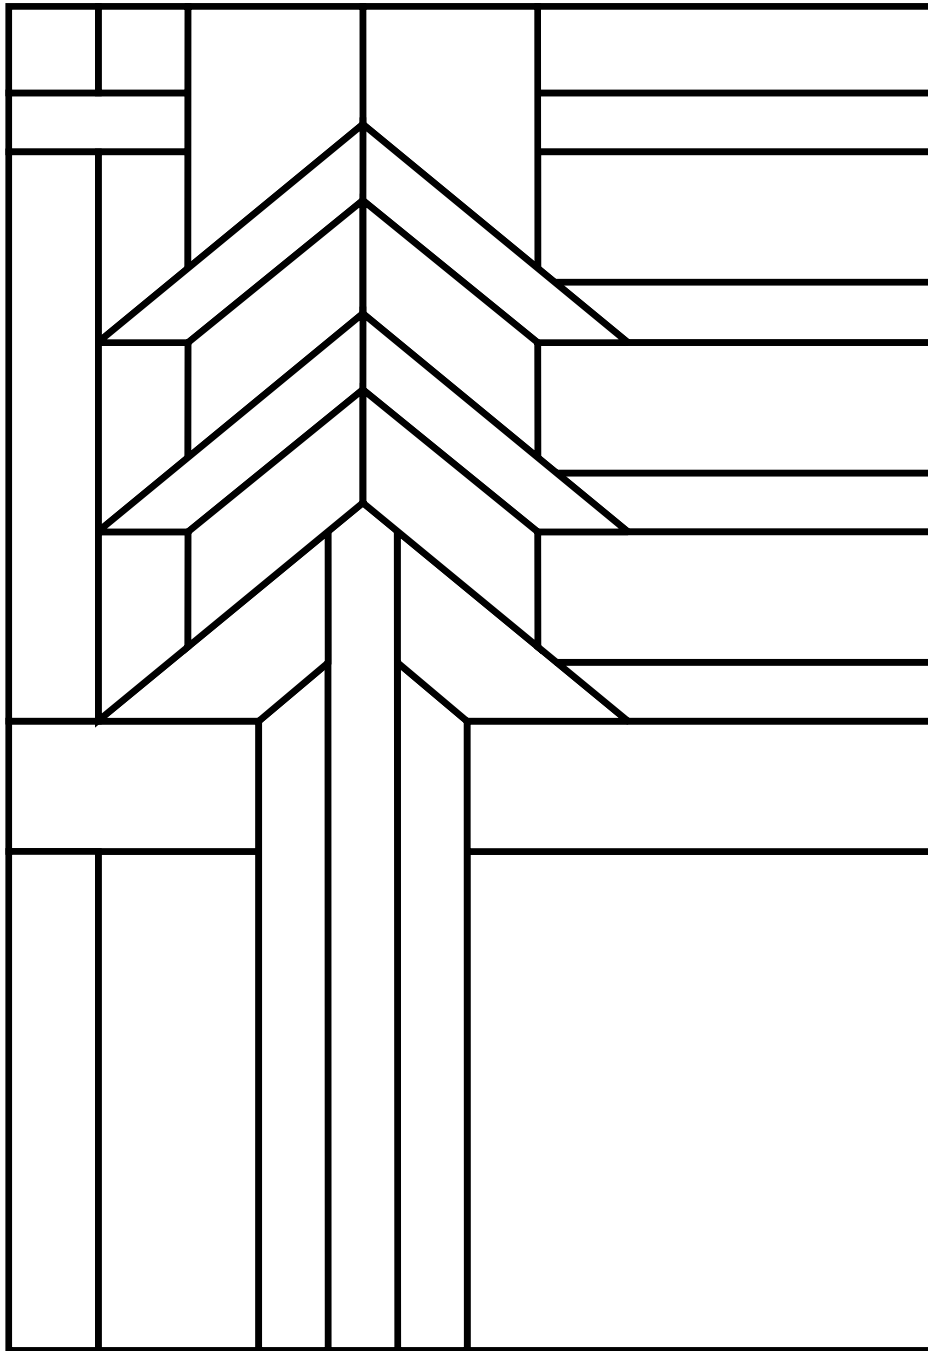

new patterns posted in February

lots of mayan calendar glyphs and chinese dragons

free pattern for March prairie suncatcher

COUPON -- freebie if you write a product
review for either
ps. you have to email me
and ask for your pattern

<http://gospelglass.com>
<http://memory-beads.com>

3

marian@pdqpatterns.com