Hi everyone. We have had record high temperatures here for May, and this is the first time I really think that global warming is making me NOT do things I have done in the past (thus saving energy). There is, however, interesting evidence (published in a reputable scientific journal) which makes me--down in the core of my scientific HEART, think we are in global warming because of the thousand-year-long (\pm) a few years, episodic changes in the sun-- The graph shown in this article indicates that we are still at the bottom of a very long and serious temperature upswing, as we are now just exiting an ice age. it is truly going to be a warm place to live....We might not yet be living in the planetary mess we have created as human beings but rather just riding out the long cyclic change in of the solar system (meaning millenia) . However just to be sure I don't contribute to a greater peak in the millenial-swing, I am being very conservative with electric and with gasoline and heat.

Have a great month of June and visit us often, and thanks for your continued business.

The June freebie (like May's pattern) is a quick and fun panel for kids and adults alike. Make this quasi-american flag (or purchase a different flag at <http://PDQpatterns.com>) with your daughters and sons as a great patriotic project to hang in their bedroom. While I am very unhappy about the war in Iraq and fully believe in my heart that in this world we all need to negotiate our differences with peace, I still am a part of this country and it benefits NO ONE to denigrate ourselves or others. We all need to be acutely aware of whom we elect to office, and to make every effort to be well informed and vote for individuals with integrity and good conscience.

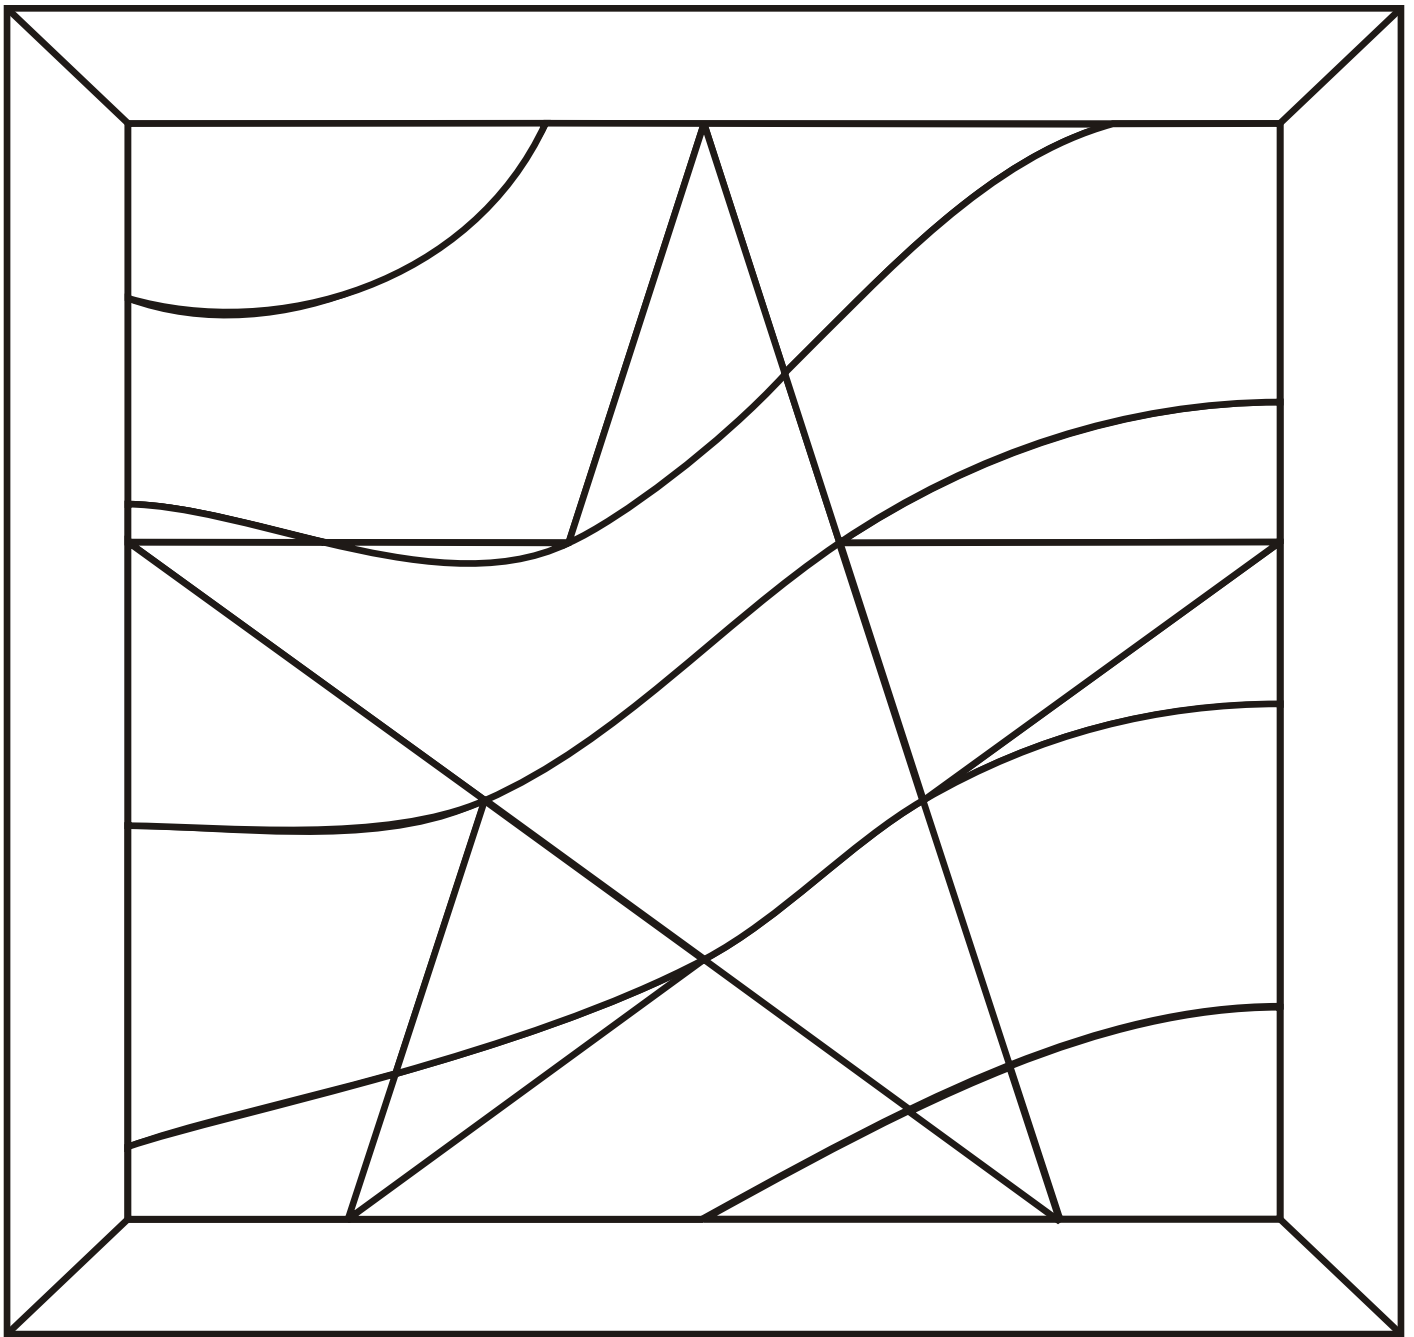

There are other flag-patterns posted on the website <http://pdqpatterns.com> and if you have a special request, just email me and I will create something and post it there as well. Doesn't have to be a country flag, maybe a Boy Scout Flag or something else? Whatever you think want.
