Morning! It's the first of July already, and half of the year 2007 is gone. Seems just like yesterday that I sent out the newsletter which said Happy 2007. Hmm--I think we are in a time warp, and that the cosmos is zooming away at "warp factor 9". Here in Cincinnati it's a nice day, and we finally got some rain, but not enough to make up our deficit. Meanwhile in my home state of California, fires threatened the very places that I visited as a child.

When we, as pioneers--which we all are in some sense--try to transform natural woods, deserts, wetlands or mountains into stripmalls, housing projects and industries, we violate laws of nature which are NOT GOING to change just because we become inhabitants. When we build below sea level, or interrupt the continual renewal of fire in the desert lands, or build fields in areas normally forested we run the risk of being taught the lesson that nature will always win.

The Almighty physical forces and the unknown workings of the cosmos will continue on in spite of us, and in continuing, they will bring change, and this ordered-change is a part of our universe and the multiverse, of which we are a very tiny part. We need to be in awe and prepared to pay the price.

With that---I laugh at my comments...though they are valid...just look at the free pattern, nothing natural in it and, completely non-natural, all man-made so to speak!!

The July freebie follows our aim to provide a quick and fun panel for kids and adults alike, to encourage participate of children in making this alphabet block for their sibling, or friend's birthday. Any letter in this alphabet block series can be purchased at <http://PDQpatterns.com> and while I haven't finished the whole alphabet, yet, I will make a custom letter for the same price, within 24 hours (or you get a freebie) of your request (Sundays excluded).

Many new patterns have been added this month, and I still try to get one new patten up per day, sometimes I have other stuff to do, and just can't get to it, but check back with <http://PDQpatterns.com> frequently, and just run through the list of new things. A few among the many added this month are categories of clowns and carousel horses. New patterns also have been added under the liturgical category. My latest series of liturgical patterns stems from the verse "consider the wild flowers (lilies) of the field, they toil not neither do they spin, yet Solomon, and all his glory, was not arrayed as one of these." So guess what, a series of special floral designs.
